- HSA may request from time to time reasonable evidence of continuing credit worthiness after an account has been opened. Such evidence will usually be in form of annual financial statements, trade references, and bank references, but HSA reserves the right to require additional information in its sole discretion.
- Changes in the Applicant's business status or structure must be reported promptly to HSA since the original credit applicants will remain liable for payment for shipments made to a business until such notification is received. Formal notification of changes such as incorporation, changes in ownership or other restructuring that may alter the liability of a customer or its owner must be received in writing and will not be effective until received and approved by HSA.
- In the event of non-payment of an obligation due HSA and the institution of collection and legal proceedings, Applicant shall pay any and all collection costs incurred by HSA in collecting amounts owed to HSA including, without limitation, attorney's fees together with court costs and accrued service charges from the date due until the date of final payment.
